Workers compensation fraud happens more often than anyone would like to think. Nationwide, it costs employers and insurance companies $17 billion a year.

- Employee red flags include the employee refusing light duty opportunities, “shopping” for a provider/is noncompliant with treatment, there is no witness to the injury, is vague on how the injury occurred.
- Employer red flags include under reporting payroll and fabrication the location or type of operation.
- Medical Provider red flags include billing for services not actually rendered or provided, over billing, fabricating procedures and unbundling services.

To report any suspicions of fraud, whether it is an employee, employer, or medical provider, please call 385.351.8140 or 1.866.FRAUD.50, or email stopfraud@wcf.com.
