If injured on the job, follow these steps to get the best medical care while not putting yourself at financial risk.

1. Notify your supervisor immediately of your injury.
2. For emergencies and life-or-limb threatening injuries, seek treatment at the nearest emergency room.
3. For non-emergencies, seek medical treatment with your employer's designated physician.
4. If your employer does not have a company doctor, seek treatment at a workplace injury clinic. (PPO list may be found at wcf.com)
5. Tell the physician your employer's workers' compensation carrier is Workers Compensation Fund.
6. If you are referred to a specialist for follow-up care, ask for a referral within WCF's network.
7. Contact your claims adjuster to determine which medical services must be pre-authorized by your physician.
